

Dear Hiring Manager,

This is all from me (no AI). My name is Marc J, Greenberg and I am a seasoned technologist who has spent a career delivering production quality commercial software. I am a software development professional who has managed large projects but who is very comfortable as an individual contributor on small, focused teams. I am a mature sales engineer who enjoys working channel/partner relationships to simultaneously leverage sales and technological innovation.

After 25 years I am still at the helm charting the course thru the clusters of technology. I have played virtually every role in the software industry, and I am interested in joining an organization that shares my values and is simply nice. I believe every technical minded person should code every day (in language, or script, or pictures). I build things, after all I am still <https://codemarc.net>

Kind regards,

Marc J. Greenberg
